Medium: Oil on wood panel

Description: "Portrait of a Lady", the smooth surface and fresh skin tones characteristic of Waldo are juxtaposed against Jewett's looser treatment of the sitter's clothing. The woman's austere expression is mirrored in her modest dress and simple background. There is a quiet dignity about her, as revealed by her stoic stance and alert gaze. Much like the English masters he studied, Waldo created drama through the subtle illumination of skin tones against a dark costume and background.

Dimensions: 30 x 24 1/2 in.
